Top down shooter games for android

Hockey is the last of the four major sports in North America, although it also has a good international following. However, he simply doesn't have the numbers that football or football have. This means that developers don't pay as much attention to hockey as they do with other sports. In other words, you have a few options here, but let's just say they're not the most robust. Still, there are some fun games to play. Here are the best hockey games for Android.

Blocky Hockey
Price: Free to play

Blocky Hockey is a simple arcade hockey game. It uses runner mechanics. You skate the slopes. You must change track and keep going to avoid opponents. It features a lot of playable characters, fighters, multiplayer and retro style graphics. There's not much else for the game beyond that. It's affordable, cheap and fun to play. It's good to kill the 20 minutes between periods.

ESPN and Yahoo fantasy hockey
Price: Free

ESPN Fantasy Sports is a decent fantasy sports platform. Supports most sports, including hockey. The app allows you to create or join leagues, sboteia your team, define your list, free agency browsers, conduct negotiations and communicate with other league managers. That's basically all you need to do. The application has an occasional failure. We recommend double checking to make sure your lists get it right. Otherwise, this is a decent, if occasionally slow, app for fantasy sports.

Franchise Hockey 2020
Price: Free to play

Franchise Hockey 2019 is a fantasy hockey simulator from CBS. That seemed strange to us, since NBC has the rights to hockey games in the U.S., but whatever. The game allows you to build a team, simulate full seasons, train your players, and more. It's mostly a collectible game. This means that there are freemium and loot boxes elements in the form of player packs. It's better than previous games in the franchise. However, its freemium mechanics are still quite aggressive. It's fun to play.

Rage: HockeyPrice
Price: $0.99 + $0.99

Rage: Hockey is a top-down arcade hockey game. You have a goalie and a skater. You skip the until someone scores. It's like an ice hockey version of air hockey. The game features local multiplayer support for two players on the same device. We thought it was a little unique. Also, there is a tournament mode for a bit of variety. It's a simple arcade. Arcade, at its core. It is also not a freemium game and this is a rarity in the mobile gaming space. The game is a good time killer, if nothing else.

Hockey All Stars
Price: Free to play

Hockey All Stars is a decent overall hockey game. You get a joystick and some buttons to really control the players on the ice. The game is smooth and enjoyable, especially when you hit that ice cross a timer for a goal. However, it is a free game to play with free elements to play. So you can expect a lot of grinding to get better players. Otherwise, it is one of the best mobile hockey games.

Hockey Nations 18
Price: Free / Up to $4.99

Hockey Nations 18 is a decent arcade hockey game. This is also from the same developers as Hockey Classic 16. It features three vs. three hockey between Six Nations. This includes 40 North American teams, 27 Russian League teams, 19 International Teams and two all-star teams. It has a limit of games per hour and you can buy more if you want. In addition, it is free of the usual free to play elements that plague mobile games. It's very good for what it is and despite its name, it still gets updates from 2020.

Puppet Hockey
Price: Free to play

Puppet Ice Hockey is more of an arcade game with hockey elements. It's a 2D game with one against one game. You throw the puck through the ice and the other player returns it. Whoever scores the most goals wins. There are power-ups, truly fun animations, and more. However, at the end of the day, this is just Pong with a hockey theme. Still, he's a good killer, even if it's a freemium game.

HockeyPrice Puzzle
Price: Free to play

Puzzle Hockey is a hockey themed game. You probably know how to play three games. You move symbols in a grid until you combine three or more. The resulting matches help you score goals, make saves, and win games. It's an officially licensed game, so there are real hockey players in this one. However, at the end of the day, it's a three-game hockey-themed game instead of a real hockey game. Still, it will take you through the 20-minute break.

Stickman Hockey
Price: Free/$2.27

Stickman Ice Hockey is one of the few hockey games with real hockey mechanics. You skate up and down on the ice, score goals, and do other hockey stuff. It has the top-down style of 90s hockey games. This should make older fans feel at home. The game also features four difficulty levels, 46 teams, various season modes, multiplayer PvP and hardware controller support. This makes it probably the best true hockey game available on mobile. It's certainly not perfect, though, and has its share of insects. Some are just a dollar, some are a couple of dollars, but sometimes I'm just looking forward to finding a really sweet free game for for out and mess with. I came across A Space Shooter for Free today, which picks up the old retro shooting genre and adds some over-the-top characters to produce a very thin little game. You take command of the USS Eradicator as Commander P. Jefferson, a hard-spoken, alien pilot who wants nothing more than to kill as many aliens as you can anywhere. The Commander (and all the other characters you encounter) are all dubbed, which is quite unique for an android game, and his voice actors all knock him out of the park. Gameplay is exactly what you would expect from a retro space shooter. You control a lone, tiny ship against hordes of other alien ships that want nothing more than to remove it from the map. Fortunately, most aliens of the grunt variety end up being driven out with just one shot from your ship, so you have that advantage. As far as graphics are concerned, this game tops. The ship models are quite detailed considering their size and there is a lot of variety on the screen. From the weapons you will pick up the weapons you will try to avoid, there are many candies to keep you engaged. Add in a variety of different environments, some giant space rocks packing (meteors? asteroids?) and other environmental issues, and you'll begin to notice how many details have been put into the game. The controls are all made through the touch screen without virtual joysticks. Move your finger along the screen and the ship will follow suit, filming along the way. Being right-handed, I usually ended up exploding when I had to turn to my left thumb, but with a little more practice, I'm sure I'll be fine.

Space Shooter for Free is a fairly radical game, especially considering it's (mostly) free. You can unlock more bosses, difficulty levels, and weapons for $1.01 (what's with the penny?) using an in-app purchase you'll see on the main screen. A Space Shooter for Free is also enabled for OpenFeint, so for the range hunters in the crowd, there's more for you to do. Anyway, get the free version because it's awesome. We have download links after the break. I usually stay away from the FPS games of the browser for these roundups. They tend to be done with the Unity engine and end up being low rez monstrosities take forever to load and they want you to be impressed with 3D while ignoring the lack of any real game. The harvest of free games this week, however, goes totally against the grain. All three games have been made for the 7 Day FPS Challenge and all three are fantastic first person shooter games that you can play only on your browser. Flip'd is a great-looking FPS puzzle in the same vein as Portal that has some simple and challenging platform puzzles for you. Collect energy and use it to flip The level, by inverging gravity and dropping you towards the ceilingSphere is an FPS puzzle about throwing a bouncing ball at a target. The mechanics of the game looks like a carnival game, but the scenery looks like a lost level in Bioshock, leaving you to stop a world convincingly designed with only its reliable but mysterious sphere to keep you company. By far the shortest game on the list this week, Vonneguts and Glory is what you'd get if the famous author wrote a wolfenstein game. I can't describe the game much without giving the twist, but it's a fantastic fps for fans of the early 90s or Kurt Vonnegut himself.
